

ALTERIO

MARKET REPORT · OCTOBER 2026

Holland Park West.

What houses are selling for, how long they are taking, and what has changed in the past twelve months.

THE HEADLINE

A $1.5 million suburb.

$1,515,000 MEDIAN HOUSE	10.53% 12 MONTH GROWTH	24 DAYS ON MARKET	91 HOUSES SOLD
--	--	---	--------------------------------------

The median Holland Park West house now sells for $1,515,000, up 10.53% in twelve months. That is more than $300,000 above the Brisbane median of $1,207,039.

Next door, Holland Park sits at $1,579,175, up 12.80%. The two suburbs are now within about four per cent of each other on price. Holland Park West houses are selling faster, at 24 days against 27.

Ninety one houses changed hands over the year. That is roughly eight a month in a suburb of about 6,400 people.

The pool of comparable sales here is genuinely small. Two or three results on your own street can move what your home is worth, which is why a figure drawn from a portal estimate and a figure drawn from the actual comparable sales can be a hundred thousand dollars apart.

AT A GLANCE

Holland Park West	10.53% · 24 DAYS	$1,515,000
Holland Park	12.80% · 27 DAYS	$1,579,175
Brisbane	14.3% · ALL HOUSES	$1,207,039

By the bedroom.

Three bedrooms	MEDIAN	$1,300,000
----------------	--------	-------------

Four bedrooms	MEDIAN	$1,740,000
---------------	--------	-------------

Five bedrooms	MEDIAN	$2,027,000
---------------	--------	-------------

The jump from three bedrooms to four is $440,000. That single number is the most useful thing on this page for most owners here, because it is far more than a fourth bedroom costs to build where the floor plan already allows it.

The step from four to five is smaller, at $287,000, and comes with a longer, more expensive build. If you are weighing up work before a sale, the fourth bedroom is almost always the one that returns its cost. The fifth often does not.

Twenty four days.

That is the median time a Holland Park West house takes to sell. It is a fast market by any measure, and it means a well presented home priced sensibly is meeting its buyer inside a month.

It also means a home still sitting at six weeks is telling you something. In a twenty four day market, time on market is the clearest signal a buyer gets, and the longer a home sits the harder it becomes to recover the price.

THE PART MOST REPORTS LEAVE OUT

The heat has come off.

Brisbane house values are up 14.3% over the year. They also fell 0.6% over the latest month and 0.9% over the quarter.

Both of those things are true at once, and most of what you will read quotes only the first. For an owner, the second matters just as much.

An appraisal from a year ago is now too low. An expectation built on the fastest months of the run may now be too high. Neither is a reason to panic and neither is a reason to rush. It simply means the number you are carrying in your head is probably wrong in one direction or the other.

It is a good market to sell in. It is no longer a market where the price takes care of itself.

WHO LIVES HERE

Owners, not investors.

Sixty five per cent of Holland Park West homes are owner occupied, and the gross rental yield is 2.76% on a median rent of $750 a week.

A yield that low tells you investors are not setting the price here. Families are. They buy on the school catchment, the size of the block, the floor plan and how the house feels on a Saturday morning, not on a spreadsheet.

That is why presentation, photography and the open home matter more in this suburb than they would in an investor driven market. The buyer paying the most is usually the one who has already pictured their own furniture in the room.

What is your home worth?

A median is a starting point, not an answer. Your street, your block and your floor plan move the number a long way. A written appraisal puts the comparable sales in front of you so you can see exactly how the figure was reached, and a straight answer on what the home would do if you went to market now.
